

DialogueDriven.com - New Online Forum Community Launches

People either want to tell their story or they don't...DialogueDriven encourages people to do just that.

A new online community has launched into the world wide web. DialogueDriven.com is a forum start-up that aspires to offer "something for every one". It's "Life on the Web" concept is simple in theory, but can prove difficult in application.

"One of the most difficult parts of starting an online community is getting people to publish their content to the site" says forum publisher James Daniels. "People either want to tell their story or they don't. In time, I hope that DialogueDriven encourages people to do just that."

With over sixty-five content categories and growing, DialogueDriven.com has alot of promise.

<http://dialoguedriven.com>